Post-Olympic Beijing...A New Perception

Welcome back from a fun busy summer! I had a chance to chat with a few of Peregrine Travel Group's clients who attended the summer Beijing Olympic Games and asked them about their impression of Beijing. The astonishing similar answers they gave did not come as a surprise to me. "It was amazing, Beijing is more beautiful than I've imagined," said one client. "Spectacular performances and the Chinese people were so nice and made us feel very welcome," chimed in another client. Our third client who travels frequently to China said, "Beijing, once again, has out done itself and this time it has put China on center stage of the world map."

This summer, an exceptional outstanding Opening Ceremony of the 29th Olympic Games was staged in the National Stadium, nickname "Bird's Nest," on August 8, 2008 at 8:08pm China time. China displayed its amazing long history and civilization to an audience of 91,000 from all around the world and tried its best to demonstrate the phrase "harmonious society," quoting China's President Hu Jintao. The slogan of Beijing Olympic, "One World, One Dream" has truly been demonstrated in the Spirit the Olympic Games.

China has grown so rapidly in recent years that even people who live in China often do not realize that the country, just seven years ago won the right to stage the Olympic Games in Beijing, is no longer the same place. "For a lot of foreigners, the only image of China comes from old movies that make us look poor and pathetic," said one local Chinese I met in Beijing who watched the Opening Ceremony on a large-screen television at an upscale downtown bar. "Look at us now. We showed the world we can build new subways and beautiful modern buildings. The Beijing Olympics will redefine the way people see us."
